

Patrick Cummings /The Spectrum & Daily News

Animal Liberation Racing's Chris Pereira rides up the hill on Old Highway 91 near the finish of the Utah Summer Games cycling time trial in Cedar City on Thursday

■ Cyclists display what they are riding for at time trials

BY RICK GILLESPIE

For The Spectrum & Daily News

CEDAR CITY — At first glance Chris Pereira looks just like the other racers who showed up for the Utah

Summer Games cycling time trials Thursday afternoon — but a closer look reveals he is quite unique.

While other racers' uniforms are covered with the logos of corporate sponsors and big brand names, Pereira's sports the name Animal Liberation Racing, an organization he started earlier this year to raise awareness for animal rights.

"(Our purpose) is to stop the exploitation of animals from food and scientific purpose and that type of stuff," Pereira said.

Pereira, an experienced rider and a vegan, said he enjoys competing and he gets a certain level

● See CYCLING on B3